A tree at first setting, should not be shaken; and therefore put two little forks about the bottom of your trees, to keep them upright. Bacon's Nat. Hist.
 Circe, the daughter of the sun; whose charms
 Whoever tasted lost his upright shape,
 And downward fell into a grov'ling swine. Milton.
 Forthwith upright he rears from off the pool
 His mighty stature. Milton's Par. Lost, b. i.
 You have the orthography, or upright of this ground-plot,
 And the explanation thereof, with a scale of feet and inches. Moxon's Mech. Exerc.
 2. Erected; pricked up.
 All have their ears upright, waiting when the watchword shall come, that they should all arise unto rebellion. Spenser.
 Stood Theodore surpriz'd in deadly fright,
 With chattering teeth, and bristling hair upright. Dryden.
 3. Honest; not declining from the right.
 Such neighbour nearness should not partialize
 Th' unlooming firmness of my upright soul. Shakespeare.
 How hast thou infill'd
 Thy malice into thousands, once upright
 And faithful, now prov'd false! Milton's Par. Lost.
 The most upright of mortal men was he;
 The most sincere, and holy woman, she. Dryden.
UPRIGHTLY. adv. [from upright.]
 1. Perpendicularly to the horizon.
 2. Honestly; without deviation from the right.
 Men by nature apter to rage than deceit; not greatly ambitious, more than to be well and uprightly dealt with. Sidney.
 Princes in judgment, and their delegate judges, must judge the causes of all persons uprightly and impartially, without any personal consideration. Taylor.
 To live uprightly then is sure the best,
 To save ourselves, and not to damn the rest. Dryden.
UPRIGHTNESS. n. f. [from upright.]
 1. Perpendicular erection.
 So the fair tree, which still preserves
 Her fruit and state, while no wind blows,
 In storms from that uprightness swerves,
 And the glad earth about her throws
 With treasure from her yielding boughs. Waller.
 2. Honesty; integrity.
 The hypocrite bends his principles and practice to the fashion of a corrupt world; but the truly upright man is inflexible in his uprightness, and unalterable in his purpose. Alderbury.
TO UPRISE. v. n. [up and rise]
 1. To rise from decumbiture.
 Early, before the morn with crimson ray,
 The windows of bright heaven opened had,
 Through which into the world the dawning day
 Might look, that maketh every creature glad,
 Uprose Sir Gyon. Fairy Queen, b. ii.
 Thou knowest my down-sitting and mine uprising. Ps. cxxxix.
 Uprose the virgin with the morning light,
 Obedient to the vision of the night. Pope.
 2. To rise from below the horizon.
 Uprose the sun. Cowley.
 3. To rise with acclivity.

UPRISE. n. f. Appearance above the horizon.
 Did ever raven sing so like a lark,
 That gives sweet tidings of the sun's uprise? Shakespeare.
UPROAR. n. f. [uproer, Dutch. This word likewise is accented on the first syllable in prose; in verse, indifferently on either.] Tumult; bustle; disturbance; confusion.
 The Jews which believed not, set all the city on an uproar. Acts xviii. 5.
 It were well if his holiness had not set the world in an uproar, by nourishing of war. Raleigh.
 He levied forces in a disorder'd uproar, albeit the treason rested in him and some other his complices. Hayward.
 Others with vast Typhaean rage more fell,
 Rend up both rocks and hills, and ride the air
 In whirlwind; hell scarce holds the wild uproar. Milton.
 Horror thus prevail'd,
 And wild uproar! ah, who at length will end
 This long pernicious fray? Philips.
 The impiety of this sentiment set the audience in an uproar; and made Socrates, though an intimate friend of the poet, go out of the theatre with indignation. Addison.
TO UPROAR. v. a. [from the noun.] To throw into confusion.
 Not in use.
 Had I power, I should
 Pour the sweet milk of concord into hell,
 Uproar the universal peace, confound
 All unity on earth. Shakespeare's Macbeth.
TO UPROOT. v. a. [up and root.] To tear up by the root.
 Mean upstarts, when they come once to be preferred, forget their fathers. L'Estrange.

 A moist toad-spotted traitor. Shakespeare, K. Lear.
URWARDS. adv. [up and ward, Saxon.]
 1. Towards a higher place.
 I thought
 To smooch your passage, and to soften death:
 For I would have you, when you urward move,
 Speak kindly of me to our friends above. Dryden.
 In sheets of rain the sky descends,
 And ocean swell'd with waters urwards tends;
 One rising, falling one; the heav'n and sea
 Meet at their confines, in the middle way. Dryden.
 A man on a cliff, is at liberty to leap twenty yards downwards into the sea, not because he has power to do the contrary action, which is to leap twenty yards urwards, for that he cannot do; but he is therefore free, because he has a power to leap, or not to leap. Locke.
 2. Towards heav'n and God.
 Looking inward, we are stricken dumb; looking urward,
 we speak and prevail. Hosker, b. v.
 3. With respect to the higher part.
 Dagon, sea-monster! urward man,
 And downward fish. Milton's Par. Lost, b. i.
 4. More than; with tendency to a higher or greater number.
 Their counsel must seem very uncalonable, who advise men now to suspect that, wherewith the world hath had, by their own accounts, twelve hundred years acquaintance and urwards, enough to take away suspicion. Hosker, b. v.
 I have been your wife in this obedience
 Upward of twenty years; and have been blest
 With many children by you. Shakespeare, Hen. VIII.
 5. Towards the source.

 Moral doctrine, and urbanity, or well-mannered wit, constitute the Roman satire. Dryden.
URCHIN. n. f. [heureuchin, Armorick; erimaceus, Lat.]
 1. A hedge-hog.
 Urchins shall, for that vast of night that they may work,
 All exercise on thee. Shakespeare's Tempest.
 A thousand fiends, a thousand hissing snakes,
 Ten thousand swelling toads, as many urchins,
 Would make such fearful and confused cries,
 As any mortal body, hearing it,
 Would straight fall mad. Shakespeare, Titus Andronicus.
 That nature designs the preservation of the more infirm creatures, by the defensive armour it hath given them, is demonstrable in the common hedge-hog, or urchin. Ray.

URG

2. A name of slight anger to a child.
 Pleas'd Cupid heard, and check'd his mother's pride:
 And who's blind now, mamma? the urchin cry'd.
 'Tis Cloe's eye, and cheek, and lip, and breast:
 Friend Howard's genius fancy'd all the rest. Prior.
URG. n. f. Practice; use; habit. Obsolete.
 Is the warrant sufficient for any man's conscience to build such proceedings upon, as are and have been put in ure for the establishment of that cause? Hosker.
 He would keep his hand in ure with somewhat of greater value, till he was brought to justice. L'Estrange.
URTER. n. f. [urter, Fr.] Urters are two long and small canals from the basin of the kidneys, one on each side. They lie between the doubling of the peritonaeum, and descending in the form of an S, pierce the bladder near its neck, where they run first some space betwixt its coats, and then they open in its cavity.
